BRING A STOCKING to the Glendale Press office tonight and swell the Xmas hearts of Glendale's poor kiddies. Please?

SEVENTY-SIX STOCKINGS ARE RECEIVED

Former Resident of Kansas Goes Over the Top

MANY STATES A W O L

Press Office to Remain Open to Receive Gifts to 9 p. m.

Listen to this. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. Smith, 829 Verdugo road, came to the office of the Glendale Daily Press with six pairs of stockings, three pairs for three poor boys and three pairs for three poor little girls. Besides stuffing the stockings with gifts, Mrs. Smith left 6 shining 50 cent pieces, one for each stocking and requested the Daily Press to put them in the stockings—they were an after thought. They are in the stockings now. Before going out, Mrs. Smith left $2 in cash for presents for other children who might want to buy their own Christmas gifts. This story speaks for itself, but a word can be added. If there were more like Mrs. Smith in the world, there would be less of strife, less of selfishness and more happiness. Mrs. Smith formerly lived in Salina, Kansas.

To noon today, there were 76 pairs of stockings in the pile displayed in the window of the Glendale Daily Press for the poor kiddies of the city. There should be about 30 more pairs to cover the situation this Christmas. Who will help to make the number adequate? Mrs. Smith said she would come back Saturday to see if she could do more, but the Glendale Daily Press believes there are many more Mrs. Smiths in Glendale who will find just as much pleasure in giving as Mrs. Smith from Salina, Kansas.

The states that have thus far answered the call by giving a pair of stockings, (some states have given several) with one or both filled with gifts for the poor children are New York, Massachusetts, New Mexico, Missouri, California, Illinois, Kansas, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Colorado, Washington, South Dakota, and Texas. If you are from any of the states not mentioned, get busy and get a pair of stockings and fill one. It may be that some of the unmentioned states have turned in stockings, for in some instances, the givers did not give their former residence.

The stockings will be distributed tomorrow, and those who want to add to the 76 pairs will find the office of the Glendale Daily Press open until 9 o'clock tonight to receive them.

Many little children have brought in stockings for kiddies less fortunate, and they have brought them in with a smile. It is strange that many people do not enjoy their money. Money can bring more happiness when spent for the happiness and welfare of others. Try it, try it today, and bring in a pair of stockings. Help swell the stocking pile to one hundred pairs before 9 o'clock tonight.

Canada helped, too.

COLLINS WILL GET NEW SPEED BIKE

Motorcycle Officer Makes Life Miserable for Speeders

Beware, speeders and other traffic ordinance violators! The city council last night made an appropriation and authorized Traffic Officer Merl Collins to purchase a new motorcycle and in a very few days he will be after the speeders at a rate that will make it almost impossible for the average speeder to escape.

Officer Collins is counted as one of the best and most daring officers on the local force and when he starts after a violator of the law it is seldom that the violator escapes. The motorcycle that he is riding at present has become worn out in the service of the department and it was deemed necessary to purchase a new one to maintain the efficiency of the department.

Officer Collins is the Glendale police officer who, in August, captured Manuel McKnight, self-confessed bandit, wanted in connection with the robbery of a Huntington Park bank. Officer Collins pursued and shot McKnight as he was attempting to escape from Glendale after having passed several worthless checks here. McKnight later died from his wounds after confessing to his part in the Huntington Park bank robbery. The capture and subsequent confession by McKnight was responsible in a large degree for the solving of the problem surrounding the holdup of the bank.

America Has Ideals and Will Be Quite True to Them Says James

"America has ideals and will be true to them," writes Henry James this evening in his comments on the day's news on the editorial page. "Certain papers are advocating what they are pleased to term 'a defensive program for the United States.' It is equally an offensive program."

This is the manner in which Mr. James raps the papers that are advocating this—the same papers that espoused the cause of Germany in the late conflict. The words of Mr. James are never so twisted you can't get their meaning "right off the bat."

Cupidity, Greed, Justice, Beauty and Vanity figure in "The Listening Post" tonight and James W. Foley handles them with a pen of understanding.

Dr. Frank Crane reaches out for a subject and selects "Seasickness," and he says that no one knows what it is. You may not agree with him, but read what he has to say. He evidently has experienced it.

Other features this evening on the editorial page are timely and interesting. The editorials cover a wide range of subjects.

FORMER POLICE HEAD SENTENCED

OAKLAND, Dec. 23.—Arthur Bullock, alias R. A. Nelson, who is in jail here charged with passing fictitious checks, admitted today that he is Edgar H. Larsen, former district Attorney of Piute County, Utah, and confessed to the crime. He will be sentenced from one to fourteen years in the State's prison.

Larsen was arrested under an assumed name here in September and charged with cashing a worthless check for $100. The discovery that he was at one time a prominent member of the Utah bar, and that he is also the possessor of a long criminal record, was affected by a national detective agency. Since his election in Piute County in 1917, according to the agency, Larsen has been arrested five times. Each time he escaped with probation, or was pardoned, according to the agency.

Miss Agnes Peter.

Miss Agnes Peter is back home in Washington. She is the first American woman to be granted the silver medal of honor given by the French government to foreigners for distinguished service, having been the director of the Foyer du Soldat, which is similar to our own Y. M. C. A. Miss Peter served with the army of occuation in the Rhineland, later with the "Y" in Poland, Austria and Czecho-Slovakia, and on her way home visited England, where she saw the survivors of the ZR-2, which crashed in Hull. Now she is on a tour of the girls' schools of this country, telling them of the needs of fellow students in Europe, explaining their desperate plight because of the failure of government subsidies and the exchange situation; and she is raising funds to help provide for them.

DEBS PARDONED BY HARDING TODAY MANY OTHERS

Aged Leader of Socialist Party to Get Freedom from Prison

EUGENE V. DEBS

Four times Socialist candidate for President.

Denounced conduct of war in speech at Canton, Ohio, June 16, 1918.

Convicted for violation of espionage act, September 14, 1918.

Conviction sustained by supreme court, March 10, 1919.

Began serving sentence April 13, 1919.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.— Eugene V. Debs, veteran Socialist, is expected to receive his freedom as a Christmas present from President Harding today. Within a few hours Debs probably will pass out through the gates of Atlanta federal prison, an American citizen once more after having spent over two and one-half years as a convict behind the bars because of utterances against the war with Germany. Many of the other 197 political prisoners probably will be freed.

President Harding will make his long-delayed announcement regarding release of so-called political prisoners at the White House late today. Although it has not been officially stated that Debs will be in this list, every indication in official circles points to it.

The President completed his study of the 197 cases under consideration during a long conference with Attorney-General Daugherty at the White House last night. It could not be learned just how many of these political prisoners are to be released before Christmas, but the best information is that about one-third of the cases will be acted on favorably at this time.

President Harding will either grant an outright pardon or commutation of sentence in releasing the prisoners. There may be some paroles, but Debs does not come in this class as he has not served one-third of his ten-year term.

BANDITS FORCED BANKER TO VAULT

PISGAH, Iowa, Dec. 23.—Two masked bandits this morning held up the State bank here, forced two officers of the bank and five customers into the vault and escaped in an automobile with $3100 in cash and an unknown amount of Liberty bonds. Posses are in pursuit of the men, who are believed to be fleeing to Omaha.

Glendale Is Turning Away Twenty Families Each Week

By JOHN H. GERRIE
Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

When a city turns away prospective residents, property owners and prosperity bearers at a rate of more than twenty every week, something is radically wrong. Yet that is exactly what Glendale is doing now and has been doing for months past.

It cannot be stated with any degree of certainty just how many of these homeseekers are lost to Glendale through lack of accommodation to hold them here, but the very lowest estimate of half-a-score real estate agents places the number at twenty families a week, with some weeks far exceeding that figure. These come in looking for an apartment or a furnished bungalow in which to live temporarily while they look around and decide upon the location for a permanent home.

John H. Gerrie

Not everybody from the east, or the west either, is satisfied to run out from Los Angeles, accept the word of a real estate dealer that the site he offers is the most advantageous from every point of view and then remain in an overcrowded Los Angeles hotel or apartment house while architects and builders are consulted and the new home is under construction.

Most home-seekers, particularly from a distance, before squatting down on a square of ground for the remainder of their lives, would like the privilege of living for a while somewhere near the location of their final selection, so that at their leisure they may study its relation to shops and theaters, to schools and churches, to banks and doctors, to view and neighbors.

These make the very best residents, because when they come they stay and where they invest their money they move to the front in the betterment of the community. And these are the sort of people who are being turned away from Glendale at a rate of at least twenty families every week.

Why? Because there are no apartments here for them and no small houses for rent. There is lack even of rooms to rent. The small Hotel Gray on East Broadway turns away applicants for rooms almost daily. The sign "No Vacancies" is displayed almost constantly in the outer doors of the few rooming houses there are in this city.

As a consequence when Mr. Homeseeker from Missouri comes to town, full of delight at the beauty of the setting, full of optimism for the future and full of "dough" to become a part of the community and looks around for a temporary abiding place for himself and family he soon acquires "cold feet." Then he bundles his family into a car, takes a run over to Hollywood, or down to Long Beach, finds a place to stay and eventually is won over by the attractions of his newest environment.

"It is impossible to say how many desirable residents and property owners this city loses in the course of the month because of lack of places to stay while they are looking around and making their plans, but the number must be large," said J. R. Grey, one of the leading realtors and property owners in Glendale. "People who come to my office looking for apartments or furnished houses average three or four a day. A large hotel and more apartments are Glendale's greatest need."

This need has been pointed out in these columns several times. It may be supplied in part by the building of the proposed Ambrosini hotel at Glendale avenue and East Broadway. But even that $500,000 project with its proposed 350 bedrooms, each with bath, will not fill the demand. Apartments or small furnished houses, where families may do their own housekeeping while waiting to claim their own homes from the builders, are most needed.

To the capitalist who will come in here and build a block of apartments, or two blocks of them, of varying sizes to accommodate two, three or more persons in a family, handsome returns are awaiting. And it won't be a case of "not needed when the boom is over," for there is no boom in Glendale. The growth of this city is natural though it is the fastest natural growth on record.

Among twenty families a week looking for accommodation it won't take long to fill twenty apartment houses.

OFFICERS SEEK BOOZE, FIND SKULL

Man in House Says He Never Saw Bones of Man Before

SEATTLE, Dec. 23.—Police and city detectives were making a thorough investigation today of the finding of parts of a human skeleton in the attic of a house here.

The skeleton was found by Sergeant L. L. Miller, in charge of a raiding squad who expected to find a cache of booze. In searching the attic one of the police stumbled over a human skull and search revealed bones of the leg, arm and spine. Frank Teteola, the occupant of the house, was unable to explain the skeleton and said that he had never seen it before and had lived in the house but a short time.

MARY STAYS HOME AS ANGELS RAVE

Promoters Chicago Grand Opera Talk Things Over Today

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Harold F. McCormick and other millionaires today discussed whether or not to continue giving their fortunes for a song. The "angels" of the Chicago Grand Opera company met with the directors of the organization to decide what disposition is to be made of the most expensive musical organization in the world.

Mary Garden, under whose management this year's grand opera in Chicago cost $2,500,000 for 23 weeks, was ill at her apartment while the tempest, which may result in abandoning the opera company, raged. It was stated authoritatively that Miss Garden will be asked to continue as director of the company next year, if the board can make both ends meet.

WEATHER MAN SAYS POSSIBLE RAIN SATURDAY

Fickle Sky Today Makes Shoppers Halt—and Halt

BAROMETER GOES UP

Official Weather Man Says Unsettled Saturday

Los Angeles and vicinity: Partly cloudy unsettled weather tonight and Saturday with possible occasional rain.

Do your Christmas shopping earlier. You never know what might happen between now and Saturday night—your last chance to do your shopping "early."

While the rainstorm prevented many from doing their Christmas shopping early, hundreds braved the storm and shopped early and often. All stores report a drop in business, but feel confident that their business will enjoy a greater volume than last year, even with the storm as a "kick-back" for early shoppers who do their shopping late.

The weather man says there may be "possible occasional rains." Fair enough. That is better than an orgy of sky juice. The skies today are fickle. One minute the sun has full possession and a minute later, a bunch of clouds chasing each other all over the dimdiddled skies cover the sun's face and cause tears, most of which find their way to earth. At 4 a. m. today, the moon was shining bravely. It was just a little moon, but it is the best we have on hand at this time. Very few people saw the moon at that hour, and it matters little to them whether it is large or small. Be that as it may, the moonshine in Glendale is plentiful, if you know where to "see" it—moonshine of the sky variety. Chief of Police Martin is authority for the statement that if there is any other variety around town, he wants to know where it is. There are others. Jackass brandy is quoted at $7 per quart today.

Christmas promises to be dry, chokingly dry. Of course in reality, there are to be two Christmases this year—one Sunday and another Monday. Whenever a holiday comes on Sunday, Sunday claims exemption, standing by its legal right that no one can be twice held in jeopardy on the same charge.

However, weather is weather, whether or not Christmas comes on Sunday or on washday. A storm story must be written and a storm story this is.

According to the rain gauge of T. W. Preston of North Jackson street, the precipitation since he reported to the Press about 10:30 has amounted to .08 of an inch, bringing the total for the storm in Glendale to 10.01 inches, and total for the season to 11.09 inches, against 3 inches at this date last year. The barometer is rising steadily and now stands at 30.05. Its ascension indicates clearing weather though there may be showers.

VAN WIE GIVEN HIS RESIGNATION AS COMPLIMENT

Efficient Work Prompts Council to Give Vote of Thanks

As a compliment to City Clerk A. J. Van Wie, the city council last night agreed to guarantee all searches made by him to the extent of $100. The duties of the city clerk embrace search of municipal recorsd whenever required. The action of the council last night was a distinct compliment to the efficiency of Mr. Van Wie.

In announcing the guarantee, Councilman Davis complimented him in the manner in which he has conducted the business of the city since taking office. The office of city clerk is elective and it has been the custom of the city council, whenever it is necessary to appoint a new city clerk to complete an unfinished term to require that official to present the council with his resignation effective at any time that the council deems it to the best interest of the city to remove that official. As a testimonial of the council's appreciation of the manner in which Mr. Van Wie has conducted the department since taking office, his resignation was last night returned to him with the statement that the resignation would not be required.

WON'T LET FORD REDUCE RATES

Henry Ford.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 23.—Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer and railroad owner, bears a new distinction today. After freeing all the horses in America from hard labor, he has been denied a permit to reduce railroad rates on his railroad to free the farmers from heavy freight charges. The shock of having a railroad operator ask to reduce rates to help bring down the cost of living was apparently too great for the powers-that-be and they denied his request. He will have a merry Christmas nevertheless.

PUBLIC HEALTH IS AIDED BY STORM SAYS ECKLES

Epidemics Threatened by Dryness Are Eliminated

Dr. J. C. Eckles, city health officer, says that the rain is having a very beneficial effect on the public health by clearing the atmosphere of irritating particles.

"You can see," he said, "if a dust particle has a 'litle bug' on it and gets carried down by the rain and buried, it is less likely to worry some poor mortal than if it is floating around in the atmosphere. If the dry weather had continued almost everybody would have been sick. Since the rain there has been a perceptible falling off in cases.

"The colds which have been almost epidemic have not been of the ordinary type but akin to influenza. Diptheria has quieted down and now only an occasional case is reported. In spite of sensational rumors we at no time had more than 20 cases and of those we now have, two-thirds are ready for release. The state law requires that two cultures be taken from the throat with an interval of 48 hours between before release, and some cases who are practically cured are awaiting those cultures.

"We have had very little scarlet fever, and of typhoid have not had a case in several years. Considering health conditions reported in many other places, Glendale is very fortunate.

"A member of the state board of health said to me the other day it is remarkable how well off we are, especially as regards smallpox, in comparison with other places. Bakersfield has had about one hundred cases. Smallpox, the past year, in some sections, has been almost epidemic. In Glendale we are fortunate in having a class of people that does not transmit disease readily. Having no slums, it is easy to control epidemics. Another great advantage which we have is the help of the teachers and principals. They have co-operated to the limit with the health department and made it possible to do things that could not otherwise have been accomplished.

"The state board has recommended that schools be not closed on account of an epidemic unless there is more than the ordinary reason for it. If you close the schools you should close the theaters and churches and keep the children off the streets."

SLIPPERY ROADS CAUSE TURN OVER

Last night Captain McGuire and Officer Stein brought in an automobile found turned over on Verdugo road. The machine was the property of D. W. McLean of Los Angeles. Officials notified McLean that the car was at police headquarters and that he could have it by calling and identifying his property. He called later and said that his son was driving the automobile when it turned over but that no one was injured. Slippery roads, due to the recent rains, were blamed for the accident.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—President Harding today personally made a vigorous defense of the four power Pacific treaty.

WILL REMODEL CITY BUILDING ORDINANCE

City Officials Will Hear Suggestions Tuesday Night

WILL BRING TO DATE

Class A Building Will Come in for Revision Soon

The building ordinance of the city which has been discussed at intervals during the past six months, came before the city council last night. Several proposed changes were discussed.

The body of the ordinance will not be changed as regards the erection of the average bungalow or dwelling house. The only contemplated chance is the bringing the present ordinance up to date by the insertion of a clause governing the erection of Class A buildings of concrete or steel.

Before any action is taken toward amending the ordinance a meeting of all builders, contractors and any one else in Glendale or vicinity interested in the building ordinance will be held in the council chamber on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. At this meeting Frank A. Marek, building superintendent and City Manager Reeves will be present to explain the proposed changes and to hear suggestions.

This meeting will be open and anyone interested is urged to attend and present views regarding the proposed change or any other changes that they have in mind.

WAR VETERAN WILL TELL MAJOR OPIE SHOT SOLDIER

Borrowed Gun in Argonne Front to Kill American Soldier

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Another war veteran today declared himself ready to back up Senator Tom Watson's charges that soldiers were shot down by their officers without provocation in France.

In a letter to the Georgia senator, Grayson H. Withrow, Baltimore, declared he saw Major Hierome L. Opie of Staunton, Va., "deliberately shoot a man while in action." Withrow was summoned to appear before the senate investigating committee when hearings are resumed on January 4.

His letter was sent after seeing press reports of the sweeping denial of Major Opie of charges that he killed two soldiers, made by Henry L. Scott of Kenmore, Ohio, before the committee.

"I was a member of Company F, 116th infantry," Withrow wrote, "and I would like to go on record as saying: 'In the month of October, 1918, I saw Major Opie borrow a gun from an enlisted American and deliberately shoot a man while in action on the Argonne front.'

"This is one of the instances referred to by Henry L. Scott in his statement and my corroboration is at your disposal any time it is deemed needful or necessary by you for continuation of your probe. I was honorably discharged with an excellent character in June, 1919."

Other witnesses who declare they can testify to brutalities, killings and illegal hangings were summoned by the committee today.

NEED MORE SPACE FOR GAS METERS

Manager Phelan of the Southern California Gas company, declared today that considerable difficulty and inconvenience has been caused in some instances by builders who have left inadequate space for gas meters and piping for gas delivery.

"I particularly ask," said Mr. Phelan, "that builders of business blocks make arrangements for plenty of space for gas service pipe installation and for meters. If this is done, we can give the maximum of service to all."

MAN KILLS WOMAN MYSTERIOUS CASE

BOSTON Dec. 23.—A young girl, about 20 years old, was shot to death by an unknown man who turned the revolver on himself, sending a bullet through his head, as the two sat at a table in a restaurant here. The girl died almost instantly and the man a few minutes later. Police were unable to identify the pair early today.

Noted Film Star Will Appear in Clever Sketch

"Him" is the title of the sketch which Betty Ross Clark, the noted film actress is to appear in at the T. D. and L. Theater today and tomorrow as the headliner on the vaudeville road show. Miss Clark has apeared in many film successes on the screen and now she is to be seen on the stage in a clever little domestic playlet which was especially written for her. "Him" has to do with the problems of a young wife who has a husband whose temper is almost unmanageable. How the young wife tames "him" furnishes many laughs.

In quite a different way, the Keystone Trio succeed in making every one who hears them forget their troubles. Harmony singing that is really harmony is offered by this talented trio and their act is sprinkled with many clever bits of comedy.

That versatile boy, Jemery Seaman, offers a number of up-to-date songs and stories and also entertains with some pianologues that are brand new. This young chap comes direct from one of the largest vaudeville circuits where he was always featured.

Those joy boys, David Harvey and Frank Lewis are favorites in every theater in which they play. This year these comedians are offering their laughing success "Who Done That?" The laughs that are found in this act come fast and furious.

Amid Greenwich Village are laid the scenes of Ethel Clayton's latest photoplay, "Wealth," which is to be the feature to be shown in addition to the five acts of vaudeville. This story has to do with a struggling young artist who marries a rich man to end her struggles only to find that his rich family hates her. There is excitement and joy in every scene of this photoplay.

NEW TRACT OPENS WAY FOR HOMES

Broadway Heights Put on Market by Frank Corson

The opening of the Broadway Heights tract on East Broadway, Glendale, marks the development of one of the choice pieces of acreage in this section, and means the addition of hundreds of new homes. Frank E. Corson ,a prominent real estate man of Los Angeles, is putting this property on the market.

Choice lots can be bought from $1050 up, with a very small payment down. There is no better residential property in that section.

This tract lies on the south slope of the Verdugo mountains—has a beautiful view overlooking both Glendale and Eagle Rock. It is claimed that on clear days Catalina Island can be seen from these lots. The property fronts on the two principal boulevards of Glendale and Eagle Rock—East Broadway and East Colorado boulevard. Red street car service now in front of the tract, and yellow car service only ten minutes' walk distance. Streets, walks, curb, water, gas and electricity being put in without extra cost to purchaser. Adjoining property on two sides already built up with beautiful homes, some as high as $15,000. Schools are convenient.

Salesmen will be on the ground Sunday to show the property to those who cannot go out during the week days. Many Glendale and Eagle Rock people have homes in that section and work in Los Angeles. After January first the car fare will be five cents. Broadway Heights offers exceptional opportunities to those who want good residential property on easy payments. Go out Sunday and be convinced.

Some men refuse to work because they are afraid that they might acquire the habit.

EDITORIALS

By the People

Editor Daily Press: It has been suggested that a few citizens on December 29 may vote "no" on the high school bonds thinking that if the present bond issue fails the present location in some way may be retained. Such voters may have forgotten that twice in 1920 bond issues for enlarging the present six acre location were decisively defeated. They should not forget that the very issue of retaining the present site was settled by the citizens voting to change it. Hence, the only possible way of making any progress is to vote for either the Lukens or the Grey site and to vote "yes" on the bonds.

But what of the present plant when it is outgrown and abandoned? Shall it be scrapped like an obsolete battleship? Not at all. In rapidly growing Glendale such a substantial set of permanent buildings could in later years as easily be used as a well equipped intermediate school as could the present intermediate be used as a grammar school.

A little actual history from neighboring cities may prove of interest on this point. Pasadena some years ago moved her high school to the eastern extreme of the city on Colorado boulevard where a fine set of buildings was erected on a commodious site. The old plant in the center of town is now used as the John Muir Intermediate.

In 1917 Los Angeles high school, having reached an enrollment somewhat under 2000, abandoned the 15 acre location above the old Plaza for a 21-acre tract in the outskirts of the city, where now with an enrollment of about 3000 the school is now attempting to buy more adjoining land.

The old buildings above the Plaza were not scrapped in 1917. One of the numerous intermediate schools of Los Angeles, the Central intermediate, now occupies the plant with an enrollment at present of 1150. Some of the buildings are rather antiquated but last June the auditor valued the plant at about $400,000 (land $176,914, buildings $229,862).

A further fact is that Los Angeles school district is in the process of selling its property on Mercantile Place for about $1,000,000. The old Spring street school was once located there and the L. A. high school used the property before it made its home on the old site above the Plaza.

Glendale, then, can logically conclude that the present high school site will not be wasted. Our growth is too rapid to tolerate it. Common business sense also should spur us on to acquire the highly desirable Lukens tract of 21 acres while the price is reasonable and before the opportunity is lost through subdivision.

The slogan for December 29 should be "YES for the bonds and make sure the logical Lukens site."

Sincerely yours,
W. D. Root,

Glendale Welfare Ass'n. Com.

Editors Glendale Press: Owing to some current street reports concerning the actions of the chamber of commerce regarding several matters affecting the chamber, will you permit us to make a statement of facts concerning these reports through the columns of your splendid paper to the members of the chamber of commerce and the public generally.

We seldom become exercised over street corner gossip, but as one of the matters we shall mention refers to cash expenditures of the members' money, we feel it our duty to issue this statement.

First: Reports have reached us that the chamber of commerce had purchased at $1975 a piano. In fact, one of our daily papers so stated. In reply to this will say there was a piano purchased, a Knabe grand piano, purchased through the Barnes-Shuck Music company, the price of which was $1975, not purchased by the chamber of commerce but by the Citizens' Building company for anyone desiring to rent space in this splendid building, and the chamber of commerce will have the use of this instrument, but they have not one penny invested in it of the members' money. It is NOT the property of the chamber of commerce.

Second: We have had various complaints that the chamber of commerce was entering the restaurant business by renting the storeroom 152 South Brand boulevard, beneath the rooms occupied by the chamber of commerce to a company to start a restaurant, and several of our members in the restaurant business have been very much exercised because of this report. The chamber of commerce is a tenant in the Citizens' building company's building, paying their rent just the same as any other tenant—have absolutely nothing to do with the Citizens' building as to whom it shall be rented, or for what purpose. The chamber of commerce has no financial interest in this building or voice in its management. The chamber of commerce has no restaurant or restaurant equipment or any other commercial occupation or interest. Our business is to build Glendale if the people will be big enough and broad enough to permit us to do so.

The Citizens' Building company is a distinct and separate organization from the chamber of commerce. The chamber of commerce was instrumental in organizing the Citizens' Building company, assembling capital to make it possible to erect the splendid building they have which was so needed in this city, but as before stated, their relations are entirely independent and the chamber of commerce is in no way responsible for the acts of the Citizens' Building company.

Third: We were interviewed yesterday by a committee accusing us of taking part in the location of the postoffice. The chamber of commerce assisted in every way in obtaining an independent postoffice for Glendale and it was absolutely through the chamber of commerce that this achievement was obtained. We do not, and never have, nor do we intend to take any part directly or indirectly as an organization in the location of the postoffice or high school. As before stated, we worked to obtain the postoffice, but the selection of a postmaster and location must and will be left to the people at large, the same as to the high school. We stand squarely behind the school board in the bond issue and are using every honorable means to carry the high school bonds, but the location is up to the individuals.

The chamber of commerce is the community center in which the entire community revolves—the lungs through which the community breathes—striving to secure industries, new people to locate here, better community spirit, better civic spirit and civic upbuilding. Its entire object is constructive and not destructive.

JAMES M. RHOADES,
Secretary Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

Editor Glendale Press: My attention having been called to a letter in your issue of the 22nd, signed Henry R. Harrower, M. D., purporting to discuss a high school site, but in reality made the vehicle of a personal attack, permit me a brief reply.

Before reading the letter in question my impression always had been that anyone having the intelligence and education that are supposed to go with the title, to which that gentleman subscribes, also possessed the manners and refinement, not to speak of good taste and ethical conduct, that are supposed to be inseparable from that profession.

The matter of my home, as that of Mr. Mattison B. Jones or the Masonic Temple whose architecture does not seem to meet the approval of this self-appointed critic has, I take it, as little right to be considered in the selection of a high school site, as has that of the home of the good doctor himself which, if I am correctly informed, is on the very edge of the Lukens site.

In this connection, if the doctor will permit it, I would suggest that he take a trip to the south side of the Lukens site and then inform the voters what he finds between Colorado boulevard and that site extending almost the entire length of it. I challenge him to do so and state what it will cost the taxpayers to purchase the row of homes, shacks, chicken yards and oil station that must either be bought at enormous cost or be in the "quadrangle" if the Lukens site is selected.

It is quite true that I am in the real estate business, duly licensed and with my shingle out, and if the doctor has anything for sale in or near Eagle Rock I will handle it as cheerfully as any other property. I understand also that the doctor is properly licensed in his profession, but his attitude on this and other matters, in this community does not indicate that he sticks strictly to that profession.

If he is aggrieved that we have in any measure forestalled him in what my neighbors and I have been enabled to contribute toward a city park let me hasten to assure the gentleman that the city is still open to receive other and similar "gifts" and I have no doubt they will be equally well appreciated.

In conclusion let me add it might relieve the good doctor considerably and clarify the situation for him if he helped himself to one of his boluses before indulging in any future discussion of the school site which I have no doubt the voters will decide without any particular regard as to what either he or I may say. After the election it may dawn upon him that, after all, the voters were not so eagerly awaiting his pronouncement in the matter.

Faithfully yours,
J. R. GREY.

WARFARE RULES NOT ADEQUATE

British Delegates Have Doubts of Rules Working

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The British arms delegation doubts seriously that the German type of unrestricted submarine warfare can be ended by "rules of warfare."

This was made strikingly clear today in the face of Secretary Hughes' advocacy of such rules and his statement to the arms conference suggesting reaffirmation of time-honored—but war broken—principles prohibiting the undersea craft from attacking unarmed merchantmen without visit and search. Complete abolition of submarines is the only way to prevent unrestricted warfare in the future, the British hold, but the United States, France, Japan and Italy have clearly stated they do not favor such action.

HIT BY TRAILER GIRL IS KILLED

MODESTO, Dec. 23.—Lela Wallis, 20-year-old junior high school student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Wallis, of Westport, died here today as a result of injuries received in an automobile accident the 5th inst. at Crow's Landing. Miss Wallis was struck by a trailer which had broken loose from an automobile driven by Jose Rosa, dairyman. She suffered a broken vertebrae and other internal injuries.

DAYS OF '49 WILL BE CELEBRATED

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 23.—Preparations are already in progress for the gigantic "Days of 49" celebration which is to be held in Sacramento May 23 to 28, 1922. Under the auspices of the Sacramento chamber of commerce the stirring days of the gold rush will be revived with picturesque and adventureous incidents of the period depicted in pageant and panorama. California' capital will be turned back in its entirety to the days of the goldseekers. Stage coaches and prairie schooners will be pressed into service, and mining towns will be faithfully reproduced. Relics and souvenirs of the whole mining area will be assembled in the most complete and remarkable exhibit ever attempted.

ARIZONA SENATOR IS ON WAR PATH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, has warned members of congress that unless immediate and adequate appropriation is made to care for sick and disabled former service men he would inaugurate a single-handed campaign.

The senator's statement was made when the Russian relief appropriation bill was returned to the senate after the house had declined to accept two senate amendments, both introduced by Mr. Ashurst. One would have appropriated $500,000 for the hospitalization of the former service men in Arizona, and the other $100,000 was for use in relieving unemployment.

Mr. Ashurst denounced the Republicans in congress in the course of his speech. "Let's talk straight once; let's do something once," the senator said.

MISTLETOF GOING TO BE DOOMED IS WARNING

Excessive Stripping of Holiday Decorations Is Cause

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The old-fashioned open fireplace has been sacrificed on the altar of convenience and modern apartment life and now few children are lucky enough to have a chimney place from which Santa Claus can step on Christmas Eve.

Word comes from the American Forestry Association that another cherished Christmas tradition is on the way to extinction. Unless more care is taken of the forests where Christmas trees are obtained, declared a monograph issued by the association, the supply of these Yuletide symbols will be exhausted.

Unless some means are taken to reproduce the Christmas tree, the holly and the mistletoe which go so far toward making the "holiday atmosphere" Christmastime will have to sacrifice one more bit of romance to commercialism and get along without the cheering greenery.

The State of Vermont alone furnishes 5,000,000 trees a year for the holiday market. With such an enormous demand for the trees wasteful methods of cutting are indulged in by vendors who never do any forestry work except at Christmastime.

"The first step to save the Christmas greens," the warning of the forestry association says, "is better fire prevention methods. Proper cutting also aids the growth of larger trees, and if properly done, is a help. The holly is being cut by the unthinking in a way that borders on slaughter, and only the right sort of cutting will save this valued green for the holiday season."

Mistletoe Doomed

To the older young people the news of the possible demise of the Christmas trees is not half so doleful as the inclusion of mistletoe in the list of greens given by the foresters as doomed by the present methods of gathering.

Mistletoe is the only parasitic plant which is used as a decoration at Christmastime, but it is usually high in favor despite its parasitic character on account of the blessings it bestows on those who take advantage of the time-honored traditions concerning it.

Destructive methods of gathering the mistletoe will tell on the supply of that product in time also, the bulletin states. It clings tightly to the branches of the trees on which it grows and oftentimes the entire top of the trees is cut off in order to make the securing of the mistletoe easier, thus sacrificing the tree.

Charles Mutchler was given ten years for criminal assault, and the Norwich Woolen Mills corpora- one year each, to run concurrently.

Vahan Aldermain was given ten years for criminal assault.

TOUGH LUCK

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 23. — Santa Claus' foot slipped and somebody's Christmas was spoiled when he sent 15 gallons of brandy by Bertini, of Bakersfield, to be delivered in Porterville today. Bertini pleaded guilty before Judge Avery, who set his fine at $500 and sentenced him to six months in the county jail.

Truths in Epigram

Joy comes, grief goes, we know not how.—Lowell (1819 - 1891).

I count life just a stuff to try the soul's strength on.—Browning (1812-1890).

The true, strong, and sound mind is the mind that can embrace equally great things and small.—Johnson (1709-1784).

MACHINE-MADE EDUCATION

In discussing the subject of the new movement for testing and measuring in education, Prof. Cubberly of Stanford made some statements acceptable without debate. As to others, he will find plenty ready to take issue.

For example, he said that some schools are training beyond the point of accuracy and efficiency required by the world today, particularly in the field of writing, figuring, and the use of the old-fashioned spelling book. He said that the use of the typewriter, the adding machine, etc., was making unnecessary the excellency required in these directions.

Would the distinguished gentleman take offense at the suggestion of possible error on his part?

Accuracy in any line of endeavor represents the exercise of a virtue. Acquisition of habits of accuracy is of great value in other than the mere fact that accuracy is useful, often indispensable.

Unfortunately the mechanisms Prof. Cubberly mentions are not endowed with intelligence. Their operations are marked by the display of mental forces not inherent in keys and screws and pinions. The idea that a person taking dictation on a typewriter is relieved from the requirement to know how to spell, has the quality of novelty.

Students pore over studies that are not directly of use to them in after years, but through such studies their minds are disciplined and strengthened. Comparatively few who puzzle about even so simple a matter as plane geometry, have occasion later in life to apply its principles to their actual problems. Nevertheless their time had not been wasted. To say that the time devoted to acquiring knowledge such as they put daily to actual use, seems an indefensible assertion.

NO HORRORS OF WAR

Capt. Crossman, known as an expert on artillery, characterizes the talk of the horrors of the next war as "bunk." He has no faith that more deadly gases have been made that were recently used, or that the instruments of destruction to be available next time are more to be dreaded than in the past.

This may be true. It is not particularly important if true. The instrumentalities employed in the late war were dreadful enough to create prejudice against calling them into service again. The next war, if no more horrific than the one just finished, does not present in prospect a front in any degree pleasing. War is its own best argument against war. There is no necessity to look to the future to seek a lesson in terrors yet to be. The terrors of yesteryear are not forgotten.

The idea that pervades the human mentality as a whole, and is gaining force, is that war is not to be desired; that it is futile; that it gains nothing for the victor.

It is impossible to summon up moral reasons why the nations of the earth should not dwell in peace. This nation is striving to set the example. The idea has taken practical form. An area of peace has been established, in the hope that in the end it may embrace all lands.

Granted that airships are not capable of wiping out cities, that the potency of the most modern gas has been unduly emphasized, the effort to picture war as a delightful spectacle, or the essential of progress, utterly fails to convince.

WHEN HEARTS ARE TOUCHED

Never was the Christmas spirit evidenced in kindlier form, or more profusely, than this year. Even in such communities as this, where prosperity is general, the whole region embraced within the country's "financial white spot," many cases of poverty have been uncovered. While this was a surprise, it was a problem promptly met.

Just as fast as the instances of destitution could be announced, relief was freely proffered. There seemed to be a determination that Christmas should not be permitted to pass with even one child not having a taste of happiness.

At the same time the observer of events must look with astonishment at lavish expenditures made for pleasure alone. These are made by the class that as a rule has no thought concerning those who not only sit down to no begauded banquet table, but deem themselves lucky to have so much as a loaf of bread.

While the feast is spread for the opulent, there come cries from all over the world for aid for children. The cost of a single plate at a center of gaiety and style could save the lives of many little ones for a period of weeks. Perhaps to some of the more sensitive diners the gaunt figures of starving babes will seem to intrude; skeletons at the feast.

But the great heart of the nation is warm. It is throbbing with sympathy. It is impelling laden hands to reach out towards the lonely and the destitute, and a great prayer to ascend that not one of the needy shall be missed.

RESOURCES OF THIS LAND

Sir Edward Mackay Edgar, an Englishman of fine business achievement, has been telling the future of the United States. There is no special reason for accepting his view as free from error. He says:

"But in the case of the United States you have only 25 per cent of your resources left—plus a constantly increasing population with a tremendously increasing consuming demand. . . . Within five years the United States will begin to be dependent on her imports for the very necessities of life. Within this period she will be importing millions of barrels of oil yearly or her industry will go to smash."

There seems nothing else quite so easy as to prophesy evil.

Who told Sir Edward that the United States has only 25 per cent of resources left? What is the authority that presumes the right to make such a statement? After it is made it is a statement, nothing more; a conjecture unverified and impossible of verification.

There is no possibility of estimating the resources of the United States. There is no possibility of knowing how science, applied more and more to the problem of production, may increase the potency of the resources already known to exist. In the single matter of fuel it may be that methods will be discovered for generating heat and power so directly from the sun that the intervening mediums may cease to be of use. The ultimate yield of an acre under intensive cultivation is yet to be determined. The land to be reclaimed either from desert or swamp has an inestimable potentiality. The energy still rushing to waste in streams has not begun to be realized.

The increase of population means an increase of productive capacity. The new thousands are not coming to dine upon the fat of the land without augmenting the fatness. The alien who starts a truck patch doesn't greatly lessen the extent of the uncultivated domain, but he feeds himself and a thousand more.

There will be importation, of course. It will represent far more the luxuries than the necessaries of life. And the people here will have the means to import as they may desire.

The United States is the richest nation in the world. It is not approaching the end of its career of leadership. It stands on solid ground; its own ground. It expects to prosper, as is the right of any industrious people.

If the nations of the earth but lay aside the foolish fear of war, and belief in war, no reason appears why all should not prosper together, a mutual benefit society on a magnificent scale.

The idea of the new treaty is not that the powers signatory shall fight for each other, but that they shall so conduct themselves as to abolish occasion for fighting with any nation.

No man is always right, and some men are never right.

When self-interest somes on the stage sympathy steps down and out.

Men who do nothing but take up room in the world usually overdo the thing.

Even when a woman does trust her husband she doesn't let him know it.

It isn't difficult to form a fairly good idea of what people think of you by what they say of others.

SEASICKNESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Einstein says that everything is relative.

And long before Einstein came along we all knew that all things are approximate.

Which is just another way of saying we are human, hence finite, and hence again any work, institution or science of men has its limitations.

The soundest fortunes crumble. The strongest states break up. The stanchest ships sink. Memory experts forget where they put their hat. Homer nods. And even Christian Scientists get sick and die.

One of the common credulities of modern times is a belief in the omnipotence and infallibility of Science.

If it were announced tomorrow that some celebrated scientist had talked to the men of Mars, or that some expert of the Rockefeller institute had discovered how to make cocktails out of chewing gum, we should all believe it.

Just as in the days of our ancestors people never doubted the truth of anybody's statement that the toe-bone of a saint had cured him of fits, or that an angel had personally appeared and told him where to build a church.

To the making of books about the wonders and triumphs of science there is no end. Not much is written about its failures. And the failures far outnumber the successes.

Medical science has found remedies or preventives for smallpox, typhoid, and tuberculosis, but it is still stumped when it comes to baldness, love sickness and cancer.

Also seasickness.

There is no known remedy for that.

There are palliatives, but no sure preventives or cures.

Says a recent writer: "The causes of seasickness have been the same since the first seafarer took ship, but they are still wrapped in impenetrable mystery. Every man and woman suffers from it. The being who cannot be seasick has not yet been born.

"The article in the Encyclopedia Britannica for 1910 is virtually the same as the article in the edition of 1875."

Quain's Directory of Medicine (1902) says that "the medical treatment of seasickness is very unsatisfactory," and that "in the majority of cases any given drug is likely to prove useless."

"Atropin," says a London paper, "is a drug which gives relief if taken in infinitesimally small doses, but it is not advisable to take it. It is used before a dfficult and extensive operation, and it is a disgrace to science that it should be necessary during a voyage."

The impotencies of human wisdom are as marked as its power.

Adam knew as much about life after death as Conan Doyle or any member of the Society of Psychical Research knows.

David's and Solomon's troubles with women were repeated last week.

The little boy who asks, "But who made God?" is no nearer an answer today than the schoolmen of the tenth century.

And they know about as much now on the biggest, fastest and most up-to-date steamship about the remedy for seasickness as Noah knew when he sailed the ark.

THE LISTENING POST

Cupidity had a bauble.

A colorful bit of glass and metal, that sparkled in the light.

It was of no useful value but it delighted the eyes of the superficial and unthinking.

* * *

And Greed said to Cupidity: "It ought to fetch a pretty price if you can attract Beauty with it."

And Cupidity said: "Perhaps I should not ask a great price for it. It is not a thing of great value."

* * *

And Greed said: "Its value is what it can be made to fetch. I say you shall offer it to Beauty."

And when Beauty passed by Cupidity jingled the bauble and let it flash in the sunlight.

* * *

And Beauty was interested and attracted.

Took the bauble up and saw it glitter and sparkle.

And then hung it about her neck.

And Cupidity said: "See! It adds much to your winsomeness and prettiness."

* * *

And Beauty said: "It is a handsome bauble to be sure. I should like it.

But I have not the means by which to buy it."

And Cupidity said: "There is always the means if we will find it."

And Beauty looked longingly again at the bauble that Cupidity dangled in his fingers.

* * *

And Beauty went on.

And dreamed of the bauble about her neck.

And her sister Vanity came by and took her arm.

And Vanity said: "I saw you at the shop of Cupidity just now with a rare bauble about your neck. It was a pretty thing and you should have it."

* * *

And Beauty said: "But I have not the means."

And Vanity said: "Get them by some means. The bauble makes you irresistible."

And Vanity left Beauty with this suggestion sounding in her ears.

And Beauty met Love.

And Love said: "Beauty, I adore you. What testimony of my love can I give to you?"

And Beauty said: "There is a bauble in the hands of Cupidity that I should have.

It makes me more beautiful than ever."

* * *

And Love said: "But I have not the cost of it by me, I am afraid. But I will see."

And Beauty left. Love with the memory of the coveted bauble.

And Love was distraught for he was poor.

* * *

And Love met Weakness, his twin.

And he told Weakness of the bauble that Beauty wanted.

And Weakness said: "I know where Wealth lives and he hath a well filled purse lying about. We shall take enough for the bauble and it will not be missed until we can restore it."

* * *

For Weakness has always the intention of making restorations.

And Love and Weakness found the purse and took enough to get the bauble.

And Love found Beauty and fastened the bauble about her neck.

* * *

And Wealth found the gold missing from his purse and sought Justice.

And Justice brought Love and Weakness to book.

And sentenced them each to fifty lashes on the back.

* * *

And as they were being lashed at the post, Beauty passed by with the bauble.

And Cupidity passed by with the gold that was taken from the purse.

* * *

And Justice paused long enough to admire Beauty.

And to bow respectfully to Cupidity.

And then he went on with his business of laying on the lashes.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Rosebud—By William Broome (?—1745)

Queen of fragrance, lovely Rose,
The beauties of thy leaves disclose!
—But thou, fair Nymph, thyself survey
In this sweet offspring of a day.
That miracle of face must fail,
Thy charms are sweet, but charms are frail:
Swift as the short-lived flower they fly,
At morn they bloom, at evening die:
Though Sickness yet a while forbears,
Yet Time destroys what Sickness spares:
Now Helen lives alone in fame,
And Cleopatra's but a name:
Time must indent that heavenly brow,
And thou must be what they are now.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

The real test of a man or a woman is not the position held. Some small-natured people are in large places, and it often takes a large-hearted person to fill a small place. Riches and honor never, as it's sometimes said "make a fool of a man." They do not. They only make it possible for him to indulge his real nature.

The real test comes in the way honors are accepted. Too often honors are like wasp stings—they cause a huge swelling without real importance. If one is genuine, public acknowledgment of worth causes added humility instead. The first thought of the real man or the real woman is not: "Now I can lord it over others!" but: "What did they see in me to thus honor? How can I live up to such confidence and liking?"

But it's mighty hard for any of us to be 100 per cent real. Down in the corners of our hearts is the thought of self-satisfaction, self-conceit. It takes a fierce battle to conquer, it's hard to keep humble. But it pays. All sentiment aside, it's a good business proposition. No one really likes the self-conceited soul. No self-respecting person wants to be patronized or to listen to the self-praise of another.

Then, too, humility—not of the Uriah Heep variety, but that stamped with the mark of genuineness—is such a lovable virtue. Just to be one's self, with the same cordial charm, the same self-forgetfulness, the same desire to serve, the same thoughtfulness of others' likings and needs; this is to make ourselves indispensable in our own circle, and desired in others.

It pays as a business proposition, it pays as a personal aim.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DR. LORENZ'S HEROISM

[Baltimore Sun]

Any surgeon who, like Dr. Lorenz, will struggle in the face of his own physical suffering to relieve the throngs of cripples who have besieged his clinics is a man whom America should delight to honor and hold in the highest respect.

SHOW NO REPENTANCE

[New York Times]

That Debs and the other 146 prisoners with names less well known than his should serve out their full sentences for the crimes they committed is not vehemently demanded by anybody, and nobody would become violently excited if they were all released. Most of them probable are misguided rather than really vicious folk, victims of a congenital inability to understand what is meant by such phrases as "freedom of speech," and in time of peace they are harmless enough so far as concerns the working of direct and immediate injury to the country.

What people of common sense find objectionable in this matter is less the letting loose of these convicts than the arguments put forward in their behalf by their friends here and abroad. Not one of these friends offers an apology for them and none expresses any regret for what they did. Instead, they are described as martyrs, suffering an unjust punishment for preferring peace to war. For these statements there is no basis whatever. Every one of the prisoners was convicted after fair trial of violating laws deemed essential to the nation's safety—laws which congress has no intention of repealing—laws which in another national emergency would be enforced again with equal or greater sternness.

And who are the petitioners that are arraigning our courts for oppression of the innocent and our laws for barbaric cruelty? Do they approve of impeding the conduct of a war their country has proclaimed righteous, and do they think there should be no penalty for lending aid and comfort to national enemies? Whoever they are, they misrepresent facts when they say that every country except the United States has released all prisoners held for war crimes. Those whom the other countries have released were not convicts, but persons merely held for trial. The difference is considerable.

SHOW-DOWN ON REAL WAGES

[Saturday Evening Post]

We need a show-down on real wages. Disparity of prices and unevenness of deflation retard restoration of industry and trade. But it must be real wages and prices that are to be turned inside out, not numerical wages and prices. . . . We must measure the problem in the actual standard of living. . . . These wage scales must be translated into goods—food, fuel, rent, clothing, furniture, books, doctors' bill, amusements. What sort of family life did and do the wages sustain?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Certain papers are advocating what they are pleased to term "A defensive program for the United States."

It is equally an offensive program. It consists of providing arms of every class to be equal to the combined forces of as many nations as may be in humor to attack this country.

HENRY JAMES

This program implies that the necessity of fighting must be recognized, and that war is inevitable. It asks the United States to assume a hostile front that must be a challenge to all the world. It is the chip-on-shoulder policy.

Probably there would be far more virtue in educating peoples not to desire war, not to so demean themselves as to cause war; in other words, to be civilized.

These are the same papers that espoused the cause of Germany in the late conflict. They seem to have learned no lesson from the fate of the land of their affection and support.

Loyal citizenship determines the strength of a government. The elimination of such disloyalty as the papers under consideration displayed when the country needed, at least the moral support of every man and woman, is more dangerous than any threat from without.

America has ideals and will be true to them. As to the method of sustaining their principles, Americans do not turn for counsel to the very elements that sought to make the United States the tool and subject of military dospotism.

* * *

The erratic Italian poet, D'Annunzio, says that the yellow races are seeking to supplant the white.

This is not a new alarm. There is no evidence that it is anything to worry about. White races lend themselves but imperfectly to any scheme of being exterminated.

Probably the deeps of pseudo science have been reached by the man who proposes to pour knowledge into the human mind during the hours of sleep. He has perfected a mechanical device which he says will train the subconscious, while the daytime mind is at rest.

Whenever this fellow and his trick machine come around disturbing the hours of repose, he should be arrested as a nuisance, and his appliance reduced to junk.

The fact that a whole newspaper page is devoted to exploitation of the plan demonstrates an unworthy belief that the average reader is a fool.

Certain apartments in Chicago have doors with gold knobs, while the chandeliers are plated with silver. Some of the apartments rent at $55,000 a year.

A stranger feature yet is that people rent such places.

Probably a solicitor on behalf of starving children at Christmas would not be drawn to the spot.

* * *

Continual recurrance of the question of whether a professional woman should marry, or an artist of either sex indulge in matrimony, represents a tiresome habit.

The reason there is any chance for a question, is that the individual under consideration has essayed the role of husband or wife, and been a failure. The failure is ascribed to "temperament."

As a matter of fact an actor or actress has exactly the same right to "temperament" as the butcher or the scrub woman. That which they designate as temperament is bad temper, conceit, arrogance and selfishness.

Often the individual who attains sudden fame is spoiled, because success has been due to the single good quality possessed by that individual. A singer with the voice of an angel may have the impulses of a shrew. A violinist able to extract matchless harmony from the taut gut may be a natural tyrant, entirely unlovely in all human relationships.

A person devoid of the traits fitting him or her for domestic life naturally fails in such life, and wants to sidestep blame by putting responsibility on "art" or "career."

It is said that nine Chicago ball players will be traded for one Los Angeles player.

There seems to be strong opposition to passage of a law by congress in discouragement of lynching.

There is no record that good has been accomplished by lynching, even when it resulted in removal of an undesirable unit. Had the courts been encouraged and sustained, they might have attended to the removal, without disgracing a community.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

There is just one drawback in being a man. It rather handicaps one in dealing with women.

"If I were a woman," said my old friend Hendicott this morning, "I would have slapped that hussy all the way from my private office into the fourth elevator to the right."

I do not blame him. I am only sorry he did not sick his stenographer on and let her go as far as she liked. If I know anything about the dispositions of dames, that fur-eyebrowed typewriter expert of his would have left just a faint smear of his lady caller. The stenographer knows and I know what Hendicott does in the way of charity. That feeble-minded fool of a solicitor for a charitable organization does not.

"I am sure," says she, "that I can put you down for a liberal subscription." Says it right in front of me, mind you, though she had never before seen either Hendicott or myself. About as tactful as a Bavarian beer wagon driver. Then she gave me that con smile. "And I know this gentleman," she cooed, "would be glad to do something for this worthy cause."

We said no. Then she began to get insulting. I think she might have bullied him into signing if I had not been present. She did not know me, and being thus sheltered I told her a few truths that sent her out with her thin lips flattened like those of an angry pike.

She is the blackmailing sort of a charity solicitor. I know that Hendicott is giving more in charity right now than he can afford. He is keeping the roof over at least one family that I know of, and a poor old black woman would be dying in some poorhouse if it were not for Hendicott's monthly dole. Through him three or four kids are able to join the boy scouts and play somewhere else than in the streets. He says they might go wrong otherwise.

"I have no patience with this sap-headed stuff about criminals being weak-minded," he says. "The criminals I know are sharp-minded as razors. The trouble is that most of them didn't have a chance."

We must have organized charity, of course, and therefore we must have subscription solicitors. But if I were the boss of a charity I would not send out either a fool or a bully to get the money.

BRILLIANT PARTY FOR JANE LEIGHTON

Charming in every detail was the birthday party at which Mr. and Mrs. Albert Leighton, of 123 West Elk avenue, entertained Thursday afternoon, in honor of the sixth birthday of their daughter, Jane Leighton. Miss Leighton is the grand-daughter of Mrs. E. W. Kinney. During the course of the afternoon games were enjoyed and a classic waltz was given by Jane Leighton, the guest of honor.

Recitations were given by Leopold Cohn, Miriam Berliner, Monroe Rubin, and Elsa B. Cohn. Little Alice Leighton gave a classic toe dance, and Gwendolyn Shattuck gave a Wild Rose dance in costume. After this delightful program, the children were lined up ready to go into the beautifully decorated dining room, which proved to be a surprise in pink and white. There were three tables, in the center of which were baskets of pink roses and fern. Other table decorations were carried out in the tiny favor baskets filled with pink candies and large candy canes, at each place. At each end of the tables were large crepe paper roses in the center of which were pink candles. At the place of the guest of honor had been placed a large birthday cake decorated in pink rose buds, six candles, and on top of which had been written her name in pink frosting. The chandelier was artistically draped with pink crepe paper and rose buds. Refreshments of sandwiches, hot chocolate, ice cream and cake were served, the cake at each place having a lighted candle in a pink rose bud holder. All candles were lighted before the guests came to the table, which gave a very pretty effect.

The honored guest was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and her guests extended their best wishes for many more happy birthdays. The guests for the afternoon included Patricia Pierce, Dorothy Levy, Elsa Cohn, Mary Moore, Gwendolyn Shattuck, Margaret Dotson, Catherine Dotson, Janet Egan, Betty Cohn, Elizabeth McIlheuny, Oane Burton, Margaret Llechman, Constance Llechman, Lucile Shapiro, Rhodora and Martel McKee, Beverly Seaman, Ruth and Ruby Coker, Alice Minnie, Irene Curl, Beatrice Feldman, Marion Berliner, Genevieve Berman, Annie Berman, Charles Rudel, Allen Marshall, Leopold Cohn, Melville Cohn, Lewis Cohn, John Allen Legge, Julian Cohn, Harry Berger, Dudley Rubin, Robert Irving, Valentine Montgomery, George Friesleben, Mrs. M. CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR LITTLE ONES

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Methodist church the little tots or Sunday school beginners will have their Christmas celebration with a tree, a program of the sort they most enjoy and Christmas treats. This is to compensate them for not participating in the Christmas pageant which is to be given tonight "When the Star Shown," by older pupils and their teachers.

Mrs. M. S. Kuehny, superintendent of the Beginners' Department will have charge of this afternoon's affair and will be assisted by Mrs. H. W. Randall, Miss Alice Lookabaugh and Mrs. Prime.

Miss Kathryn Stanley of 1020 Stocker steret. was hostess Thursday evening at a delightful party given in honor of her fourteenth birthday. The evening was spent in playing games after which dainty refreshments were served. The guest of honor was the recipient of many pretty gifts and her guests extended their wishes for many more happy birthdays.

The guests included Miss Jean Ingram, Miss Alberta Plastrel, Miss Evelyn Edwards, Miss Mabel Todd, Miss Madelyn Montgomery, Miss Lucille Forrest, Miss Alice Whitaker; Messrs. Homer Searles, Layton Taylor, Charles Flynn, Wallace Tram, Charles Findley, Norval Stanley, Billy Findley and Charles Beamon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fife of 517 North Jackson street entertained Thursday evening at a dinner party in honor of the birthday anniversary of their daughter, Miss Margaret Fife.

The decorations were carried out in red and green. The guests were from Hollywood and Glendale, covers being laid for eight.

Thirty-five of Retta King Nelson's music pupils gave her a pleasant surprise Saturday when they dropped in to spend the evening with her. Mrs. Nelson had just returned from a twomonths' visit with her sister in Nebraska.

The evening's program included a piano duet by Mrs. Belle Johnson and Mrs. E. W. Dunbar; a short talk by H. F. Taylor; vocal solo, C. H. Jones; musical reading, Mrs. C. H. Jones; reading, E. W. Dunbar; vocal solo, J. Elwood Moore; readings by W. A. Wright and Mrs. Harris. Refreshments were served and the balance of the evening was spent in the playing of games.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MRS. ADA DENNEY.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in the parlors of the Jewel City Undertaking company for Mrs. Ada Denney, wife of J. L. Denney, which were conducted by officers of the Glen Eyrie chapter, O. E. S., of which she was a member. She was also a past president of the Women's Relief Corps of N. P. Banks Post and will be much missed in that circle. She has been in delicate health for a year and had several severe illnesses from which she rallied. At the last meeting of the corps she was present but admitted she felt very badly and following that she took to her bed and never rallied. She was 72 years of age and was much beloved by all who knew her.

VAUDEVILLE AT GLENDALE FINE

An Excellent Bill for Week-end Is Announced

There is an abundance of real entertaining material on the bill at the Glendale theater today and Saturday. Moore & Talbert, the harmony trio with attendant comedy will doubtless prove the biggest favorites but the Fostos, who are liberal liberators of laughter, together with their athletic exhibition will come a close second. Jessie and Hubert add materially to the mirth with "A Pair of Hose" and Bryer & Bryer with harmony singing and instrumental accompaniments, make an impressive opener. Nichols & Sherwood have a comedy act well worth seeing.

Elaine Hammerstein will be seen in "The Girl from Nowhere" tonight. It is her latest and best picture.

REDLANDS, Dec. 23.—Will C. Wood, state superintendent of education, told the teachers of Redlands and of the county at the county institute, that they must be getting higher training soon or they will not be able to survive the competition when the great number of men and women with college educations desire teaching jobs.

CATHERINE FERRY WILL HAVE XMAS

Little Catherine Ferry is ill of diphtheria and she and her mother and family are quarantined at the Ferry home on Acacia with the exception of Mr. Ferry who keeps away from the sick room and has been allowed to go and come to his business after cultures of his throat have shown that he is not infected. Catherine is not very sick and the Ferrys expect to have a Christmas just the same. Mary Alice Ferry, who has been attending Ramono college, will not be allowed to come home, but will spend Christmas with neighbors, the Hopper family.

LOOMIS MEMBER OF MUSIC HOUSE

Announcement is made today of the change in the firm name of the well-known Glendale music house of Barnes, Shucvk Music Co. Geo. W. Loomis, for some time associated with this firm as an experienced music salesman, has purchased the interest of Al G. Barnes. The name of the new firm from now on will be the Loomis, Shuck Music Co., and at the same location as the former firm at 211 - 213 North Brand boulevard. Mr. Loomis is well known to the commercial circles of Glendale as a hustling business man. The new firm will doubtless merit the confidence of this entire commercial field.

HACKENSCHMIDT MEET M'DONALD

Wrestlers Want to Get Together Gefore January 10th

Jack McDonald, heavyweight wrestling champion of Canada, who will wrestle Constantine Romanoff in Los Angeles on the night of December 28, for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the Pacific coast was in Glendale yesterday and announced that he wanted a match with John Hackenschmidt of this city.

Hackenschmidt was later interviewed and stated that he is willing to meet McDonald at any time in a finish no time limit match. The only stipulation regarding a match with Hackenschmidt made by McDonald was that the match be held before January 10 as he has a date to wrestle Plestina in El Paso, Texas, on January 17, and other engagements in the east following the El Paso match.

An attempt will be made to promote a match between these two in Glendale some time before January 10. Several promoters have put in bids for the engagement between the wrestlers. From all indications, Glendale will be successful in securing the match as Hackenschmidt is a resident of this city and is anxious to meet a man of McDonald's reputation here

COUNCIL HEARD HOSPITAL SIDE

Compliment Against Sanitarium to Be Looked Into

The matter of the Canyon Crest Sanitarium was before the city council last night for discussion. At the meeting last week a communication from H. V. Henry of the J. Harvey McCarthy Co., complained of noises at the sanitarium.

It was charged that the sanitarium is a nuisance, as it harbors insane patients who scream and cry at all hours of the day and night. The letter stated that the J. Harvey McCarthy company had recently purchased the Barnwell tract on Wilson near Broadway, adjoining the sanitarium. They requested the council to take some action to secure the removal of the sanitarium.

Attorney Pierce representing the sanitarium appeared before the council and made plea on behalf of the sanitarium. He was followed by Mr. Henry of the realty firm who addressed the council in open session and asked that the nuisance be abated. No action was taken on either the plea of Mr. Pierce or the one by Mr. Henry, the council instructing City Manager Reeves to get in touch with Dr. Bishop of the sanitarium and make an effort to reach an agreement with him.

Christmas Carols

Composed by
The United Press

The United Press is always doing something new,, something different. Today a group of stories from over the country are sent to United Press newspapers. Some will make you laugh, some will force a lump to your throat and some will cause a smile of satisfaction. Read them.

SACRIFICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Three little children in the home of E. Smith on the lower east side were writing letters to Santa Claus, but Smith was broke and out of work. He sought out a hospital and offered his blood to the highest bidder. Harry Jonas was dying and offered $100. Now Santa Claus has some money and Jonas will live.

TALKED TOO MUCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—"Merry Christmas" wrote Antoinette to some of her old employers. The employers told detectives and the detectives traced the Christmas card. They say she admitted taking some of the $10,000 worth of articles missing when she left her employers.

WHAT'S TURKEY FOR?

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—Here's a Christmas carol set to sweet music. The state market bureau announced its investigation shows the prices of all staple commodities for the Christmas dinner in San Francisco are five to ten cents per pound lower than a year ago. Turkey was 65 cents last year and this year is 60. Flour has gone down $1.40 per sack.

PRAISE GOD

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—There's a Christmas baby shortage here. Adoptable babies sought as Christmas gifts by many wealthy families are very scarce. There are hundreds of applications on the waiting list for babies, more than ever before.

REJOICING IN HEAVEN

ST. PAUL, Dec. 23.—Playing Santa for her sister, 9-year-old Dorothy Anderson skipped across Fourth street to deliver a package. In her mind was the picture of the Christmas tree she was trimming. A scream, a shout, grinding automobile brakes and Dorothy's limp form was carried into a house. She was dead.

NO HEADACHES!

DENVER, Dec. 23.—Christmas carolers here will have parched throats. Police expect Denver's Christmas to be the dryest this year since national prohibition became effective. Moonshine is going begging on the market at prices 75 per cent below those of last year and there is a large surplus supply that won't be sold, police declare.

HITCH HITCHED

FORT MADISON, Iowa, Dec. 23.—T. T. Hitch planted twenty imported Christmas trees on his estate last spring at a cost of $27 per tree. Today he reported to police they were dug up by some boys and sold for 30 cents each.

WHY WATCH FOOLED TOMMY PEELE

By JOHN BARTON
(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Bad old Watch! What do you think of a dog who'll help any one play tricks on the master who trusts him? That's just what he did. He knew the red dog they captured in Tommy Peele's Woods and Fields wasn't going to run back back to the hunter who owned it. He knew it was just breaking its heart to belong to Louie Thomson. And he knew it wouldn't hurt to let it stay with him. But he couldn't tell Tommy because dogs can't talk quite that plain. So he just deliberately helped it to get away.

For Louie's Two Arms Made a Strangely Tight Collar Around Its Neck.

He saw its red tail go bouncing off in the dusk. Then he wagged his own, with a satisfied air, and crept into the kitchen, where he lay in behind the stove and pretended to snooze as if he'd been there all the time. And he looked as s'prised as could be when Tommy found only an empty collar on the end of the red dog's chain.

Watch knew the stranger would find Louie Thomson all right enough. It could sniff out his trail among a million, let alone plain, as plain, across the fields. Louie was just telling his mother how beautiful it was. "Its eyes are so big and brown," he was saying. "And the way they look at you—way, they really say things; they're the talkin'est eyes you ever did see." Right then "Wurff, wurff," spoke up a soft bark. For the fellow outside couldn't talk with his eyes through a closed door, could he?

Louie ran to open it. And he was so speechless with surprise that the red dog's heart almost stopped. Didn't Louie want it? But the next second it knew Louie did. For Louie's two arms made a strangly collar tight around its neck—a collar it didn't want to slip out of.

"It's mine! It's mine!" cheered the little boy. "It came to me all by itself. Can't I keep it?"

"It's a nice dog," pleaded his mother. "It's a real gentleman. Look what nice manners it has."

"It's a nice dog, all right enough," spoke up Louie's father. "I'd like the youngster to have one, but I'm afraid it's a leetle mite too nice. A dog like that is worth a lot of money. It's owner'll come back for it—certain sure. You know who it belongs to, Louie boy. You can't hide it away. That would be stealing, you know."

Louie caught at a sob. But the dog's soft eyes were saying, "Never mind. Don't make a fuss. If folks don't know what we mean to do, how can they stop us from doing it?" It had learned more than one trick from wise old Watch.

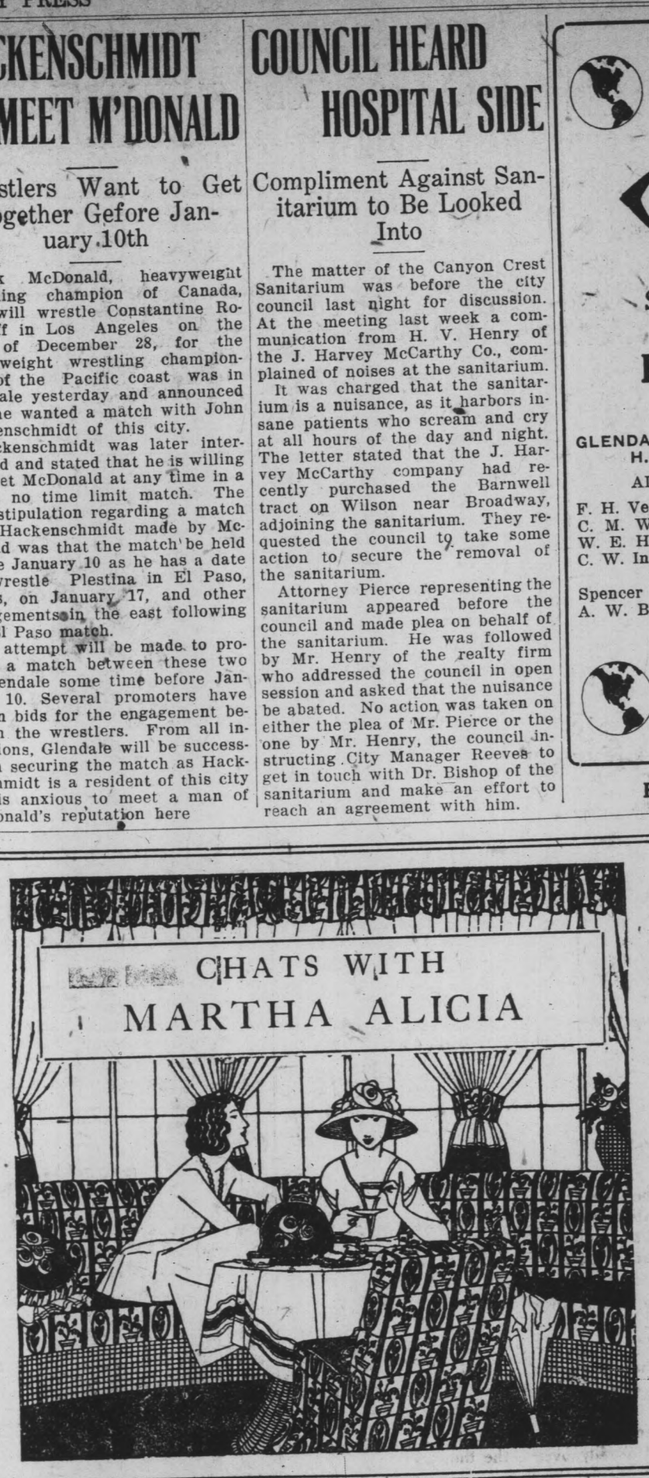
CHATS WITH MARTHA ALICIA



OUR HOME IS THE MEDIUM BY WHICH we are judged! If your home is artistically and distinctively decorated your friends will, immediately upon entering, "catalogue" you as a person of refinement and good taste. I should suggest that you stop in at HARRY MOORE'S, 304 East Broadway, and ask about the popular new Polychrome finish which Mr. Moore is specializing on. It has come to take the place of the old-style papered walls and is, I think, a truly charming innovation. Then, for the woodwork, the stipple finish is simply ideal—entirely individual and distinctive. Mr. Moore is also known for his excellent frieze work—a delightful addition to any home. There are, of course, any number of tasteful and artistic ways in which you may decorate the house—but Harry Moore is a master in the art of interior decorating and you need not feel the slightest hesitancy about leaving the matter entirely in his hands.

Of course, if you prefer to do over the house yourself you can buy the materials at Harry Moore's and he will be more than glad to help you in any possible way—advising you of the best materials to buy and showing you how to use them. Stop in and ask him about Kyanize for re-finishing woodwork and furniture—it's just what you need for your "general housecleaning!"

FLOOD CONDITION REPORTED TO CITY FATHERS

Committee Gave Resume of Session With Control Board

Councilmen sitting in open session last night heard a report from the committee appointed recently to meet with the county flood control commission of the supervisors in an attempt to secure more permanent protection from flood waters in the Verdugo canyon wash.

The committee reported that it had conferred with J. W. Reagan, flood control engineer of Los Angeles county and that he had authorized the city of Glendale to do any work that was deemed necessary and that he would attend to the payment of the same. Peter L. Ferry, chairman of the committee from Glendale also read a letter from Mr. Reagan verifying his statement regarding the payment for any work done in the Verdugo canyon wash. This letter met with the approval of the city councilmen with but one exception. Mr. Reagan stated that the city should go ahead with the desired work and that he would pay for it. Mr. Reagan failed to state that the county supervisors would be responsible for the payment of all bills connected with the work that should be done in the Verdugo canyon wash and has been recommended by City Manager Reeves.

The councilmen expressed themselves as feeling that the payment of charges incident to the work in the wash should be guaranteed by the board of supervisors and not by Mr. Reagan who is engineer of the flood control work for the county.

A motion was carried to the effect that the work suggested by City Manager Reeves as required in the Verdugo canyon wash be done, provided the board of county supervisors agree to pay for it.

FIEND AT LARGE

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 23.—Within a few hours after little Gilbert Bein had been found murdered in a cellar in New York, the mutilated body of Tessie Kuscharski, 5, was found in the closet of a hotel room here early today. Both children were slain by a "fiend" and police are working on the theory that one man is responsible for the crimes.

LA CRESCENTA IS MUCH INTERESTED

Consolidation of Roads Strikes Popular Chord Among People

LA CRESCENTA, Dec. 23.—The article in the Thursday issue of the Glendale Daily Press by John H. Gerrie, the prosperity editor of the Press, in regard to the consolidation of the Salt Lake and the Glendale and Montrose railway—was read with much interest by La Crescenta residents. It is true the Glendale and Montrose railway has been operated for many years at a great loss but this rapid increase of population in the past year in the entire valley has made the Glendale and Montrose railway a paying investment. The consolidation of the Salt Lake and Glendale-Montrose railway was a dream of W. H. Bohon, a former manager of the Glendale-Montrose railway. Let us hope the dream comes true.

One of the happy over-holidays house parties is being given by Mrs. Hariette Bastable, the honor guests being her aunt, Mrs. Minervia Snyder and niece, Miss Maude Phillips, both of Los Angeles.

The community Christmas tree exercises will be held at the school auditorium tonight at 7. The committee in charge is Mesdames E. Miller, G. Peck, F. K. Czerniski and E. Angier.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Brown of Los Angeles avenue are entertaining at Christmas dinner their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Brown and Mary Lee Brown of Glendale, and Mrs. S. Dyment and son Clarence Dyment of Barrie, Canada, and daughter Mrs. Charles Gregory of Winnipeg, Canada. Mrs. Dyment visits California every winter, this year she is a guest at the Alvarado hotel in Los Angeles.

One of the sad features of the recent storm was a delayed message to John S. Erwin and his brother Edwards, informing them of the death of their mother, Mrs. A. W. Razey of Oakland, Calif., last Saturday. Mr. Erwin received the message Monday at the time of his mother's burial at Fresno, Cal.

The Christmas exercises at the Community church next Sunday morning will be given by the Sunday school. Miss Sara Conlin will read the Christmas story.

DIETARY TABLE TO GIVE PEOPLE A LONGER LEASE

Portland Doctor Tells Audience Just What to Eat to Live

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 23.—If Santa Claus is as stout as he is pictured, then he got that way from overeating. And he'd better stop or pretty soon toyland will be jarred by the flash of its king's violent demise from apoplexy. This, or something like it, was the trend of a recent address here by Dr. J. H. Tilden, who caused an auditorium full of people to fidget with dismay while he warned them that they would never live to be 150 years old if they persisted in eating too much.

As Dr. Tilden proceeded his hearers caught visions of heroes of old, conspicuous for their abstemiousness at table. Atlanta, the Charlie Paddock of her time, sped before them, her downfall caused by trying to scoop up apples from the track as she ran in the final heat. Adonis, he of the fine form, weilded a cautious knife and fork. A certain king of Sparta ate bread and garlic one night, and the next day chased the Athenian king, who had feasted gloriously the night before, all over the lot. The famous lost battalion in the Argonne had nothing at all to eat for three days and held off the whole German army.

Bringing the matter down to cases, Dr. Tilden suggested that movie fans would never hold their waistlines anywhere near those of the brilliant actors upon the screen unless they embrace a menu on the general lines of the following:

Breakfast: one apple.

Lunch: toast and milk.

Dinner: vegetable salad, spinach and a baked potato. If one does not like a baked potato, which is very refreshing, one may eat a piece of meat, cut thin and small, or a piece of fish, ditto.

"Our jails are filled with men who didn't eat the right kind of food," concluded the doctor triumphantly.

With that warning in their minds his hearers went forth to their homes. It was noticed that a large number dropped into restaurants on the way.

"T-bone, rare, with mushrooms, and an order of French fried," one fat man remarked. "Say, Bill, that was an awful good talk, wasn't it?"

BELIEVE WOMAN IS INSANE RESULT OF DISCOVERY

Police Still Search for Clara Skarin in Mystery Case

SEATTLE, Dec. 25.—That Clara Skarin, mystery woman in the murder of Ferdinand Hochbrunn, aged and wealthy recluse, was driven insane when she found the dead body of her great uncle, is the theory now entertained by detectives investigating the case.

This, aside from a belief that the girl killed Hochbrunn herself, is the only possible theory that can be held, following the discovery that Miss Skarin disappeared from Seattle nearly a month ago.

Both theories were compatible with the facts thus far known of Clara and the circumstances under which first Hochbrunn and then she disappeared.

And both theories pointed out that Clara herself must be found to clear the mystery.

With this end in view, captain of detectives, Charles E. Tennant directed that the search for her continue in half a score of cities, including Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, San Bernardino and others where her trail may lead.

Tennant clashed with Coroner W. H. Corson over what he said as Corson's "gumming up the cards."

When the body of Hochbrunn was found late Wednesday afternoon and was taken to the morgue, Tennant directed that it be sealed in a vault and the discovery kept secret until he had opportunity to search for the murderer unawares.

He was furious when he learned that Corson had "spilled the whole thing to his favorite newspaper," and bitterly upbraided the coroner at the public safety building yesterday.

"You've turned every newspaper reporter on the Pacific coast loose on this thing," he said, "to scatter the news broadcast before the detective department had a chance to gather a single clue to tip off the murderer and make a fool of me."

"Of course," Tennant added, "you're the coroner, you know your business better than I."

Tennant went to the home of Clara's aunt, Mrs. W. C. Dalesman, yesterday and questioned her. He learned from her, however, that after the double tragedy in which Clara figured in this city in 1918, when Mrs. Robert L. Winborn, jealous of her husband's alleged attentions to Clara, wounded Clara, shot and killed Clara's mother and then ended her own life, Clara followed Winborn, the widower, to Ann Arbor, Mich., two years ago and married him on his death bed.

He gleaned from Mrs. Dalesman's conversations, too, that she had accompanied Clara to a train here on November 26 and had seen Clara off, bound for San Bernardino.

Mrs. Dalesman insisted that her niece could not have possibly have had knowledge of the death of the aged man.

"Why," she said, "Clara ate dinner at our house Thanksgiving. She wasn't excited. This is terrible."

Clara went to California because she was in ill health, according to her aunt. It might have been a man, who, about three years ago, murderously assaulted Hochbrunn, stealing up behind him while he was on a ladder painting a house and slugging him, Mrs. Dalesman said, who returned two months ago and finished the deed.

"What is it I wish?" Room, Shopkeeper—just room!
I'm all shut in here like a log in a boom.
I want room to walk and I want room to stop,
For I'm being mobbed, I am, right in this shop.
They've trodden my toes and they've done me much hurt,
And they've knocked off my hat and they're tearing my shirt
From its place on my back—I want rescue from doom!
Yes, that's what I want: room, Shopkeeper, just room!

"Would I like to have something?" Yes, Shopkeeper—time!
Time's the one thing I want and my need of it's prime.

I want time by the hour and time by the day,
And time by the year and the cycle, I say.
I want time by the aeon, so I may debate
The thing I should get for Tom, Helen and Kate.
Oh, backward, turn backward, all Time in its flight,
And make the year young again, just for tonight.

"Do I know what I'll have?" Yes, Shopkeeper, I do!
I'll have apoplexy before I am through.
I'll have broken ribs in this riotous place.
I'll have a collapse if I keep up this pace.
I'll have nervous breakdown, I'm sure after while,
If I don't get out of this bedlamite aisle.
Oh, Shopkeeper, bandages, arnica, salve!
Splints, cotton and sympathy! That's what I'll have.

"Am I looking for something?" Yes, Shopkeeper, yes!
For a lodge that is far in some vast wilderness.
For surcease of pushing and shoving about,
For a door—yes, Shopkeeper—a door to get out!
For escape from this riot of thing-grabbing folk!
For first aid, Shopkeeper! I'm sure I shall choke.
I'll do it all early next Christmas, I swear!
Help, Shopkeeper, help! Get me out in the air!

IRISH TREATY NOW ASSURED FAVOR IN IRELAND

Adherents Think Vote January 3rd Will Approve

DUBLIN, Dec. 23.—The success of the Anglo-Irish treaty seemed assured today. Adherents of the program of Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith claimed an unexpected victory in the adjournment of the Dail Eireann until January 3. They saw a substantial majority in favor of the treaty in the vote for adjournment.

Many of the supposed "die hards" voted in accord with the aims of the pro treaty men enabling them to succeed in adjourning the Dail by a 77 to 44 division. The Collinites declared this represented the majority in favor of the treaty. They said only a few of their side voted against adjournment and that the vote gathered many from the opposing faction.

Public opinion in Dublin seemed to be that the treaty is "as good as ratified."

ALL-STAR CAST SUNDAY PROGRAM

Ralph Allan Announces that he will present one of the best shows seen in Glendale when he offers "Don't Tell Everything" with Wally Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter at the T. D. and L. theater Sunday (Christmas). Mr. Allan says:

"This is a picture of rare entertainment value, and aside from the dramatic interest of the story, its tender and pure appeal, its wholesome comedy and delicious satire, it conveys a moral of tremendous force. We don't believe in telling everything about our picture attractions in advance, but we make no secret of the fact that "Don't Tell Everything" is one of the finest pictures ever booked by us. And we are sure our patrons will back up our joudgment."

SHORT SESSION WELFARE ASS'N.

A business session was held by the East Glendale Welfare Association at the Broadway school Thursday night which was attended by 25 members, mostly committees named to inform voters relative to the merits of the Broadway and Verdugo site for the proposed new high school, to urge them to come out and vote for the bonds, and to see that the vote gets out on election day, December 29. There was no discussion of the issues of the bond campaign nor of the relative advantages of the two sites. J. C. Sherer, president of the association, presided.

Men seldom fall so deeply in love that they can't climb out by the ladder of reason.

BULL MONTANA IS NOW IN HAWAII

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 23.—Handsome "Bull" Montana is en route to Honolulu, where he is going to wrestle somebody on Christmas Eve.

Bull doesn't know just yet who his opponent is going to be, but he thinks perhaps it will be Santa Claus. Anyhow, it doesn't make any difference to Bull. He is letting those rough whiskers of his grow—just to make sure.

From Honolulu come reports that one of the principal problems worrying the Honolulu reception committee is procuring of a cover large enough to go over "Bull's" cauliflower ear.

Anyhow, between times, "Bull" is counting on knocking all of the hula girls dead with his good looks. He is sure they have all seen him in the movies. He will return about January 15.

THREW PET DOG AT WIFE BILL SAYS

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—Ephraim Henry Atwood, who would lose more than $130,000 if he takes a smoke or a drink of intoxicants, stands to lose his wife, because he threw a pet dog in her face. This episode occurred on Thanksgiving day, which, according to best usages, is not an appropriate occasion upon which to smite a lady in the face with a dog. Mrs. Atwood cites other acts of cruelty in her bill for divorce. Atwood is a son of the late Fred H. Atwood, who left his fortune to two sons with the strict admonition that if either smoked cigarettes or drank intoxicants the offender automatically lost his share in the estate.
